

Mail Service Improved for Jeffersonville

Mail service for Jeffersonville, which was hard hit when the D. T. & I. mail and passenger coach was removed last Saturday, was greatly improved, starting Friday.

Under the old schedule, it was impossible to get mail out of the town on the star route in time to leave this city the same day, thus causing a long delay in the service.

Appeal was made to Postmaster W. E. Passmore, who in turn, communicated with the superintendent of mails. Effective Friday, the truck on the star route which had left South Solon for this city at 5 P. M., and arrived here at 6:15 P. M., now leaves South Solon at 3:45 P. M. and arrives here at 4:50 P. M. Mail is dispatched from Washington C. H. at 5:30 P. M.

Jeffersonville businessmen got behind the movement for better service. The new schedule will be observed until the coal, which forced the D. T. & I. mail train to discontinue operations in Jeffersonville, is over.

Survivors Hunted

A 12th man, Lieut. Charles C. Pooler, 36, engineer from Beloit, Kas., was to be brought here today. Pooler, suffering from a broken ankle, was found yesterday some distance inland by searchers from the Canadian destroyer.

Trippodi was returned in a litter aboard an air force flying boat. He could not be interviewed but his condition was described as "satisfactory."

Col. Hervey Porter, air force doctor, said earlier reports that the Brooklyn sergeant had suffered a broken ankle and two broken wrists were erroneous, but that he had "a moderately severe case of frost-bitten feet."

"Police state economic controls, price-fixing, wage-fixing, government operation of steel and utility plants, the farm controls of the Brannan plan, socialized and federalized medicine and repeal of the Taft-Hartley act would duplicate here the program of the labor-socialist government in Great Britain," Taft said.

Rep. Brown Amused

Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) offered tart reply today to President Truman's Jefferson-Jackson Day speech.

"I was amused by Mr. Truman calling the Republican party a cuttle fish squirting out black ink to confuse national issues," he said in a statement.

"I prefer the black ink of a Republican cuttle fish to his red herring and the red ink in which it writes its deficits."

Income Tax Explanations

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—What deductions can you claim in making out your 1949 income tax return?

Here's and ABC on that, together with examples of some kinds of income which, being tax-free, doesn't have to be reported at all.

To begin with, there are various limits on the deductions you can claim for medical expenses. And your charitable contributions can't be more than 15 per cent of your income.

But there are no limits on the other, personal deduction you can claim, provided you can prove you had them.

And—don't get business deductions confused with personal deductions. There are separate places on form 1040 for those who want to list personal deductions and (or) business deductions.

Here are personal expenses which can be deducted:

Contributions (limited to 15 per cent of your income) to charitable, fraternal, religious, scientific and veteran organizations and non-profit hospitals and educational institutions and societies like those for tuberculosis, heart, and cancer.

You can deduct these things, too:

Due to a labor union; state income and personal property and real estate taxes except taxes which, like paving assessments, tend to increase the value of your property. Also—

Interest on your personal note to a bank or individual; a mortgage on your home; a life insurance loan, if you pay the interest in cash; delinquent taxes; interest on installment purchases. Also—

State or local retail sales taxes, auto license fees (but not auto inspection fees), poll taxes, state gasoline taxes except in California, Florida, Louisiana, North Dakota, Utah, Wyoming and Hawaii.

(The Alabama gasoline tax is deductible in Jefferson County for all of 1949, and in the other counties of the state on and after June 14, 1949.)

You can deduct for property losses from fire, theft, storm or auto accidents when you weren't wilfully at fault and you didn't get paid off for the damage.

Also, you can deduct for use of your car for business. Entertaining for business purposes, subscriptions to professional journals, books and magazines bought for use in your profession, equipment, tools and instruments used on your job, and cost of work clothes and uniforms when they can't be used to take the place of ordinary clothing.

You cannot deduct the federal excise taxes unless paid for business purposes; such as telephone, telegraph or transportation, such as train or bus.

And—you cannot deduct the federal tax on jewelry, furs, cosmetics, estates, inheritance or gifts imposed by the government, states or cities.

And—you cannot deduct for gifts you made to relatives or other individuals.

You can deduct for medical expenses but only that part which exceeds 5 per cent of your income.

Here is the tax-free income which doesn't have to be reported:

Unemployment compensation; social security benefits; life insurance paid because of the death of the insured; inheritances, gifts or bequests of money or property although the income from them is taxable; sickness and injury benefits received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation laws. Also—

Monthly government allowances to the families of servicemen; mustering out pay; all benefits under the GI Bill of Rights, such as for educational and subsistence; state bonuses to veterans; disability pay; retirement pay for ser-

Formerly, active service pay of members of the armed forces also was exempt, but this pay has been completely taxable since Jan. 1, 1949. Therefore, soldiers and sailors must file tax returns just like civilians if they are paid $600 or more a year.

Americans Will Eye British Elections

One of the most active politicians in Fayette County made a profound observation the other day while stopping for a chat on South Fayette Street.

He said we should watch the outcome of the general election in England next week. "If Great Britain stops Socialism, the reaction against the trend will be felt here," he observed.

"Look what happened in Australia and New Zealand," he remarked in reference to the manner in which they turned away from regimented life in those countries.

The English election brings into focus two powerful figures upon whose campaigns the outcome of the campaign will rest. On the one hand there is Winston Churchill, the great wartime leader of the Britons, and on the other the colorless prime minister, Clement R. Attlee, who represents the strong Labor Party.

Churchill, who represents the Conservative Party, has been making some bitter charges against the administration of the Labor Party's Prime Minister, Attlee.

When Churchill speaks, his words bear much weight through not only England but the entire British empire.

Recently he said the Labor Party is plotting to "obtain power over its fellow countrymen such as no British government has ever sought before."

This recalls a famous Churchill speech in the 1945 campaign. He then charged the Labor Party with planning, in the event of its victory, to introduce the Gestapo and concentration camps. This wild charge is thought by some to have done as much as any one speech to lose the Churchill government the election.

Churchill's great gifts and his magnificent achievement in carrying Great Britain safely through the war make political tub-thumping by him distasteful. A national hero and a national asset, it would be pleasant if he could be above the battle.

A detached and judicial estimate of the issues would carry far more weight than picturesque eloquence devoted to partisan ends, though it may be questioned whether it would win more votes. But at 75 he doubtless thinks this might well be his last campaign. Another election might not be for five years, by which time he might well regard himself, and be regarded, as too old for office-seeking.

It is for this reason that Americans are watching for the British election outcome with great interest.

They want to see whether the move for Socialism will be halted in England. If it is, many feel that it will be slowed in this country.

First American Men

There may have been men in the Western Hemisphere 40,000 years ago instead of 20,000, the figure previously set, if Prof. George F. Carter is right. He teaches geography at John Hopkins University, and for nearly twenty years has been looking for traces for ancient man in Southern California. He finally found them near La Jolla, popular resort city on the coast. His findings could indicate that the original American population may have developed here, instead of migrating across Bering Strait from Asia.

Californians will probably say that even 40,000 years ago primitive man must have had good taste, for did he not pick out California as a place to live?

Modern City Man in the Woods

NEW YORK—(AP)—Pity the modern city man roughing it, say, in the wilds of the north woods.

He knows nothing about the whims or demands of nature. All his life has been spent in a comfortable apartment with everything provided. Now, he's alone in the north woods, this pale, unresourceful man with no talent for living outdoors.

Will he make it? Well, just grant him one concession. Give him all the latest gadgets which are provided by thoughtful outfitters for campers, hunters, explorers.

So, our modern city man, name of Herbert, is trudging along the trail, alone, nervous and laden with equipment. The wind comes up. He removes a compact pocket heater from his knapsack. He doesn't have to know how it works but it works with chemicals, gives off no flame. Our hero warms the inside of his gloves and then his ankles inside his boots.

Will it turn colder or rain tomorrow? How would Herbert know? He simply looks at the clouds, judges the wind direction from his compass, then consults his compact, pocket-size weather guide. He reads the forecast, "fair." Fine, nothing to worry about.

But alas, our boy gets thirsty. Foolish Herbert, he didn't bring any water. He stumbles onto a stream. Is it safe to drink? Can he tell? He can't. So he digs into a pocket for his small water filter which is attached to a long tube. He drops the filter into the water and drinks without worrying about impurities.

Walking back to the trail, our hero scratches his forehead on an overhanging branch. Quickly, he reaches for the iodine in his compact, comprehensive, three-pound first aid and medical equipment kit.

Herbert sighs, relieved he doesn't need the compact, five-ounce snake-bite kit which he has brought along.

Dusk falls on the lonely trail in the tall timber. Our hero decides its time to pitch camp. He unfolds and sets up his compact, six-pound, bug-proof, wind-proof, sun glare-proof tent, which also comes with windows and flaps and awnings.

It's going to be real cold tonight, Herbert decides. So he sets up a smaller, more compact tent inside the larger tent. The space between the sides of the tent provide insulation.

He cuts some wood with his little axe and carries it back in a compact, canvas wood carrier. Notice, he doesn't get kindling wood. He doesn't need it. Instead, he pulls out some small cubes of synthetic kindling, lights them with his wind-proof lighter and the flames leap up. No odor, no smoke.

Herbert admires the flames for awhile. He uses asbestos gloves to handle the hot coals. Then he smiles. He has indulged himself in romantic accoutrements, he realizes. He didn't need the fire in the first place. What he needs now is a bath.

First, a compact, four-pound cooker-heater with attached reflector for throwing off heat is unloaded and quickly warms up the tent. Then a collapsible canvas water bucket used to carry water from the stream to the tent where Herbert has set up his collapsible canvas bath tub.

Refreshed but hungry, Herbert then unloads his compact, easy-to-carry, easy-to-cook dehydrated foods and with a few simple directions has himself a meal of broth, powered scrambled eggs, diced potatoes, spinach and coffee.

He lights his pipe, reaches into his oil refrigerator for some ice cubes and mixes a high ball. He settles back in his light, compact folding chair. His eyelids grow heavy. He unzips his 100 per cent pure down sleeping robe.

He sets his small, pocket alarm clock. He turns off his lantern and stretches, thinking next time he'll bring the Missus along since this a double sleeping bag. Slowly, in complete peace, our hero closes his eyes. But he can't sleep. There's no noise. So he turns on his small, compact portable radio. Now he sleeps.

Herbert's at home in the woods.

Appetite Important To Patient with TB

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IF THE patient with tuberculosis is to get well, he must eat well; yet this is often a very difficult thing for him to do. It is easy to understand why the appetite falls in such people. They are aware of the nature of their illness and its long duration. Knowing, as they do, that they are in for a tough time, it is not remarkable that they become anxious, fearful, and emotionally upset.

This may, in part, account for the fact that many such patients eat poorly and continue to lose weight even after their temperature is normal and there has been improvement in the tuberculous infection.

A New Way

Recently, an ingenious method of improving the appetite in such cases has been suggested. It involves using an old remedy in a new way. The remedy is insulin, the secretion formed by the pancreas. Needed by the body in order to use sugar, the giving of insulin results in rapid burning of the blood sugar, a condition which always brings with it an increased desire for food.

Attention was called to insulin's effectiveness in stimulating the appetite during the war, when it was used for the treatment of patients suffering from extreme anxiety. In such cases it often produced improved appetite and better nutrition.

A method has now been worked out whereby it may offer a valuable aid in the treatment of patients with tuberculosis.

Truman Irked By Reporters

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—President Truman barked at reporters Thursday in a chips-on-shoulders news conference that they were disgruntled, he didn't like their attitude, and they ought to cool off.

That was all because he had given an exclusive interview to Arthur Krock of the New York Times and reporters were trying to amplify some of the points in that interview regarding dealings with Russia.

The chief executive said with obvious heat that he is his own free agent, he will see whom he pleases, say what he pleases, and he isn't going to be censored by anyone.

When the president emphasized that he is going to do as he pleases, somebody asked whether "you intentionally omitted 'damn.'"

Yes, the president said, but you can put it in if you like.

Restraint of Coal Production

The essence of the new proposals of John L. Lewis is a mutual agreement between the operators of mines and the United Mine Workers to restrain the production of coal. Such an agreement would be a violation, on the part of the operators, of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Those who might be tempted to enter into such an agreement, including John L. Lewis, could be held for criminal conspiracy against the people of the United States.

It is this "illegal" demand that has got John L. Lewis into his present trouble. Nor can the government assist him. Businessmen have learned that when the administration instructs a business to violate the law, the courts may still regard their acts as a violation of the law.

The question that John L. Lewis raises, however, is more important than coal. Since the NRA days, the United States has tended toward a fascistic control of production. Under the NRA, this was to be accomplished by a voluntary agreement among trade associations, labor unions and the National Recovery Administration. However, there was nothing voluntary about it. General Hugh Johnson instituting a blackmail device, namely, "The Blue Eagle"—thus penalizing those who did not go along.

In the "sick chicken case" (Schechter v. U. S.), the United States Supreme Court outlawed the NRA. Chief Justice Hughes wrote in this case:

"The Constitution established a national government with powers deemed to be adequate, as they have proved to be both in war and peace, but these powers of the national government are limited by the Constitutional grants. Those who act under these grants are not at liberty to transcend the imposed limits because they believe that more or different power is necessary."

Since that time, the government has utilized its powers to overcome such limitations not only by legislation but by regulatory administration. The Wagner Act is a case in point. It was definitely an attempt to produce controls over and limitations upon production by a combination of labor unions and a government agency.

The Wagner Act was so cleverly written that its ultimate purposes do not appear in it at all; it is a product of the Aesopian language so often referred to in the case of the 11 communists in Judge Harold Medina's Court. Nevertheless, the effects were immediately felt in the large number of strikes in the enforcement of union membership; and in the limitations on production from which this country did not free itself even during war.

In the case of NLRB v. Jones

By George E. Sokolsky

and Laughlin, Chief Justice Hughes reversed himself in a decision abounding in curious technicalities which apparently were envisaged by the skillful men who drew the act, Lee Pressman and Nathan Witt. For instance, Justice Hughes said: "The cardinal principle of statutory construction is to save and not to destroy. We have repeatedly held that as between two possible interpretations of a statute, by one of which it would be unconstitutional and by the other valid, our plain duty is to adopt that which will save the act. Even to avoid a serious doubt the rule is the same."

Since this decision, numerous steps have been taken to limit production, particularly in natural resources and in agricultural products. The current scandals with regard to potatoes and eggs are cases in point. In the matter of Carter V. Carter Coal Company, the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Cardozo states the views of the new deal on this subject.

"After making every allowance for difference of opinion as to the most efficient cure, the student of the subject is confronted with the indisputable truth that there were ill to be corrected, and ills that had a direct relation to the maintenance of commerce among the states without friction or diversion. An evil existing, and also the power to correct it, the law-makers were at liberty to use their own discretion in the selection of the means."

This can be interpreted as removing from Congress all limitations relating to imposing restraints upon production. What John L. Lewis seeks to do for his sick coal industry is to make a deal between the operator and the union to restrain production.

Sokolsky

The people of the United States. It is this "illegal" demand that has got John L. Lewis into his present trouble. Nor can the government assist him. Businessmen have learned that when the administration instructs a business to violate the law, the courts may still regard their acts as a violation of the law.

The question that John L. Lewis raises, however, is more important than coal. Since the NRA days, the United States has tended toward a fascistic control of production. Under the

Concert Week Proclaimed by City Manager

Drive for Funds
Slated in City
From Feb. 20-25

City Manager Winston W. Hill has put his signature to a proclamation which sets aside the week of Feb. 20-25 as Community Concert Week.

During this next week members of the Washington C. H. Community Concert Association plan to conduct a campaign for members for the purpose of raising funds to bring artists to this community.

Officers of the association include the following: William Cliff, president; Mrs. J. Rankin Paul, campaign chairman; Miss Edith Gardner, Mrs. Otis Core and Mrs. Tom Bush, vice presidents; Miss Frances Ging, secretary, and William Purcell, treasurer.

The proclamation follows: "Whereas, the Washington Court House Community Concert Association next week is holding its annual campaign for members for the purpose of assuring a series of concerts by world famous artists here during the season 1950-51.

"Whereas, every community is improved by advantages of sound business establishments, industries good schools, churches, libraries and various municipal improvements. The availability of fine music presented by authoritative musicians is another advantage which will benefit those making their homes in Washington Court House, Ohio.

"Whereas having become interested in music through the excellent instruction in our schools and by our private teachers, through the many radio programs bringing these treasures freely in to our homes and through motion pictures, many of us will be glad to welcome our Carnegie Hall in Washington Court House for the enjoyment and cultural development of ourselves and the education and pleasure of our children.

Shrine Dinner Here Is Monday

Business, Pleasure
Are To Be Combined

Members of the Washington C. H. Shrine Club today were looking forward to an evening of both business and pleasure when they gather for their annual dinner Monday at 6:30 P.M. at the Country Club.

Several distinguished guests from Aladdin Temple in Columbus have accepted invitations to attend. Among them will be Ray Zirkle, the recorder; T. Merrell McLaughlin, a past potentate, and Chet Wiedner, the editor of Aladdin's Lamp, the Aladdin Shrine's official magazine.

Kermit Hankins, the club's president, is to conduct the business session and Ray R. Maddox, is to be the toastmaster for the after-dinner program.

The annual election is the principal item on the business agenda. Five directors are to be chosen—that is the entire governing board. By custom, however, all the directors except the retiring president are to be on the list of candidates. Their reelection to the board of considered merely a formality;

thus, in reality, only one new director remains to be elected to replace the retiring president.

The club's officers are chosen from among the directors when it organizes.

Harold Maddux is the club's vice president and Max Lawrence is the secretary-treasurer. Other members of the board are Paul Pennington and Herbert Clickner. Most of the arrangements for the annual dinner have been handled by the directors. Walter Craig, however, heads the committee on decorations.

On the lighter side for the entertainment program, James E. Wheeler is coming from Columbus to put on a magic show.

The club here has a membership of about 230. With a number of out-of-town guests invited, a spokesman for the directors said a "Capacity turnout" is expected. He estimated that more than 150 would be seated at the tables for the dinner.

Phi Beta Psi Founders Day Is Observed

The annual Founders Day dinner of Phi Beta Psi sorority, which is one of the highlights of the social calendar of the sorority, was held at the Washington Country Club.

The colors of the sorority, red and white, were carried out in the elaborate decorations throughout the club lounge, with gorgeous arrangements of red carnations and white snapdragons used profusely, and red tapers in crystal candelabra casting a soft light.

Tables seating the forty-five members for the delicious three course repast, were adorned with red tapers in triple branch crystal candelabra, and the floral adornments were in red and white, with garlands of smilax running the entire length of the tables.

Covers were found marked with place cards with a red rose motif, the sorority flower.

Following a congenial dinner hour, Mrs. J. Earl Gidding, a past national grand officer of the sorority, gave an interesting history of the chapter.

An impressive pledge service by candlelight was in charge of the president, Miss Clara Story, assisted by the vice president, Mrs. Frank Baker, for six pledges, Mrs. Donald Schwaigert, Mrs. Robert Dunton, Mrs. Robert Willis, Mrs. Richard Willis, Mrs. Robert Sanderson and Mrs. Robert Allen.

Thumas Close Gap On Kute Kiddies

The Thumas today were breathing down the necks of the pace setting Kute Kiddies in an ever-tightening Merchants League race.

When the two leading teams met at Bowling Thursday night with the chips down, the Thumas won the first two games, but dropped the last one. Had they made a clean sweep, the two outfits would have been tied for the No. 1 spot in the standing. As it is now, the Thumas are only a game behind.

It was a battle royal from the start; so hot, in fact, that in the total scores (without handicaps) the Thumas held only an 18-pin advantage—2391 to 2373.

The Producers tightened their grip on third place with a two-out-of-three win from the Med-O-Pure Dairymen, while, in a family fight, the fourth place Pennington Blue Bakers were losing two to the Red Bakers.

Lead Is Lengthened By Henry's Coalmen

Henry's Coalmen today were sitting just a little more comfortably in the top spot of the Industrial League.

After taking the lead from Warner's Servicemen last week, they won two games from Wise's Clothiers on the Bowling alleys Thursday night, while the Warner crew was losing two to the Moore outfit.

The Clothier's victory put them a little closer to the Servicemen. Individual scores were not quite up to standard for these bowlers. Osborne came through with a 564 to set the pace. F. Lynch was closest to him with 554.

In a match that pitted out-of-town teams against each other, the Greenfield Merchants took two from the Jeffersonville Merchants.

After winning the opener, the Barger Brothers dropped the last two to the Dairymen.

County Tournament Launched

Varsity Tourney Openers Won By Wayne and Jeffersonville

Wayne High School's basketball team, who romped over the Madison Millers to win their opening game of the Fayette County tournament 68 to 45, and Jeffersonville's Tigers, who staved off a last period drive by Bloomingburg's Bulldogs to win Thursday night's finale, 44 to 37, were to meet Friday night on the WHS floor here in the game that will go a long way toward determining the tournament winner.

Under the rules of the tournament, the two winning teams of the opening night get together in the last game of Friday night's three-game card. That pits Wayne and Jeffersonville against each other.

The two losers of the opening night—Bloomingburg and Madison—meet in the second game Friday night.

In the opening night's curtain raiser, Wayne's Junior High cagers put on a spectacular 16-point spurge to nose out Jeffersonville's Juniors, 24 to 20.

The first game of the second night (Friday) will bring the Reserve teams from Jeffersonville and Madison Mills together.

Wayne Wins Easily

Although the Millers made it interesting for Wayne's Mad Anthony's for the first half of Thursday night's first varsity game and were trailing by only 9 points at the intermission, the boys from Good Hope pulled out all the stops when they came back for the second half and turned the battle into a rout.

At no time, was the outcome of the tilt in serious doubt.

Good Hope's Ray Anderson sparked his team's offense with 23 points. And he just loafed in the last period and played only part of the third. He had a picnic in the second period, however, when he racked up seven of Wayne's 8 field goals.

Wallace, with 12 points, was Wayne's next high scorer, but it was the teamwork that put both of the leading point-getters in scoring position with the ball.

Coch Bakenhester used 13 boys in the game.

The Millers scored enough points to win a lot of ball games, but their 45 was not enough against Wayne.

The Madison Mills offensive chores were fairly evenly distributed among the five regulars. 11 points each, but it was well timed teamwork and accurate passing that worked the ball into scoring position. Mastery under the bankboards was what turned the trick for the Tigers.

All-American Hart To Sign New Contract

TURTLE CREEK, Pa., Feb. 17—(AP)—Leon Hart, Notre Dame's All-American end who will play with the Detroit Lions of the National American Football League next fall, is due to sign another sort of contract today.

He will wed Lois Newyahr at St. Coleman's Church in this western Pennsylvania town. Both Hart and his bride-to-be are 21.

Jeffersonville Wins

Although Jeffersonville's Tigers ran hot and cold throughout their game with Bloomingburg's Bulldogs, they took a 9-point lead in the first period and managed to hang on against several scoring spurts by the Bulldogs.

The Tigers' worst relapse came in the second period when they scored only five points. But, the Bulldogs were having troubles of their own at the same time—they tallied but 6.

Back from the halftime intermission, the Bulldogs opened up again with full speed ahead and racked up 13 points. The Bulldogs kept pace with the same number.

At the start of the last period, with an 8-point lead, the Tigers ran into the doldrums again while the Bulldogs got hot. With only three minutes left in the game the Bulldogs had closed the gap to 3 points.

Bedlam broke out in the crowd that packed the bleachers almost to capacity.

Disdaining to "freeze" the ball or try to stall out their advantage, the Bulldogs, sparked by Cornell's drives for the bucket, suddenly came to life and scored three quick buckets to the Bulldogs' one. That gave them a 7-point edge when the buzzer ended the turmoil.

Ohio Cage Tourney Won't Be Postponed

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17—(AP)—The state high school basketball tournament, scheduled here for late in March, probably won't be postponed because of the coal shortage, it appeared today.

Commissioner H. W. Emswiler of the Ohio School Athletic Association said there is "little likelihood" of a postponement.

Yesterday Gov. Harry F. Schriker of Indiana said in Indianapolis he was "confident" the fuel shortage will force Indiana to postpone its high school tournament.

The Ohio tournament is held in the Fairgrounds Coliseum, which is gas heated. Emswiler pointed out the coal shortage has not disrupted any county class B tournaments. He said he expects little interference with district, regional, and state matches.

Texas Sisters Still in Race

CHAPTER NINETEEN

HALF AN HOUR ago Lucy was struck down. Dr. Price had said Shayne himself had been in the apartment almost that long before going into the bedroom. He didn't let himself think that things might have been different if he had gone directly to the bedroom when he saw her slippers on the floor.

The door to the apartment had been unlocked, he recalled. Perhaps she had thought of something she wanted to get from her own room while she waited for him.
He had gone and left the door on the latch. She didn't have a key to the door. But why would she have gone into the bedroom, gone to bed, without locking the door?

The agony of trying to think without anything to begin with,
with absolutely nothing that could give him any intimation of what had happened, was exhausting. He sank into a chair by the table. He poured a drink and began sipping it slowly. He looked around the apartment with narrowed and speculative eyes. He knew every inch of it, every article of furniture and the exact position occupied by each one. He couldn't see anything out of place — nothing whatsoever to indicate where the attack on Lucy had occurred.

Anger rolled over him like a tidal wave as he began to realize the actual import of what had occurred. Someone had come here, brutally slugged an innocent girl
and then walked calmly out again.
And he was sitting around like a fool, straining his ears for a sound, a significant word, from the closed bedroom, and not doing one thing about what had happened.

He got up and stalked to the telephone, got police headquarters, and asked for Sergeant Harvey who was in charge of the homicide squad.

"Speaking," Sergeant Harvey
said.
"Mike Shayne. There's been an attempted murder in my apartment. Murder... maybe."
"Which was it? Make up your mind."

"The doctor will have to tell us that," Shayne's voice was edged with anger. "You got anybody around there who can come over and dust for fingerprints or is that too much trouble?"

"Keep your pants on," said the sergeant wearily. "We'll be right over. Who is it?"

"My secretary," said Shayne shortly. "Miss Lucy Hamilton. I wish you'd bring Robertson if he's on duty." He hung up and again let his eyes roam slowly over every inch of the room, then strode into the kitchen and tried the door leading into the fire escape.
It was locked, and the key hung in its accustomed place over the sink.

Back in the living room he got the night clerk on the wire. The man asked anxiously, "What's the trouble, Mr. Shayne? Someone hurt up there?"

"My secretary. I'm afraid she's pretty badly hurt, Jim. Was there anyone asking to see me this evening?"

"Not a soul, Mr. Shayne. I haven't seen Miss Hamilton go out or come in, either."
"She didn't," Shayne told him.

"You think she was attacked in
here or in the bedroom?"
"We'll have to get that from the doctor. I didn't waste any time
looking around the bedroom after
I found her like that. It's my impression, though, that there'd be blood on the floor if she was attacked in here."

"Might as well go over the whole
place for fingerprints, Richardson,"
the sergeant said to the younger
member of the trio. "What'll be legitimate besides yours, Mike?"
"Lucy's... she cooked dinner in
this place."

"We had dinner here, and she waited for me when I went out.
Notice anything particular about anyone coming in or out of the apartment while I was gone?"

After a brief silence the night
clerk said, "Not a thing, Mr.
Shayne. Mostly just the regulars I'll ask the elevator boy if you want."

"I'll talk to him myself. The cops are on their way over, Jim.
Send them right up, will you?"
He hung up and went to the closed bedroom door and bent his head to listen through the keyhole. He could hear the low murmuring of voices, but could distinguish no words.

He left the entrance door open when he went down the corridor to the elevator. When it stopped in response to his ring the door opened, the Negro boy asked excitedly.

"What's up, Mist Shayne? You
all right? When I bring Doctor Price down..."

"I'm all right. It's Miss Hamilton. She was slugged in my apartment while I was out. Did you bring any strangers up here tonight? Anybody who asked for my room?"

"Nobody that ast for you. No-
suh. Coupla strangers, maybe. Nobody I noticed a-tall."
"Any friends of mine then," said Shayne sharply. "Anybody who may have seen around here with me before?"

"Nobody cep't that newspaper man. The long thin un..."

"He came after I was back."
"Thass right. He sho did." The elevator buzzer sounded. "Tse got somebody waitin' at the bottom,"
the boy said.

Shayne nodded and went slowly back to his open door. The elevator returned to the third floor and stopped before he had entered. He turned to see Sergeant Harvey and two of his men get off and come toward him. They greeted Shayne with grave cordiality when he invited them in.

"Well... let's have it," said
Sergeant Harvey.

Shayne explained briefly what had happened to Lucy Hamilton, ending with, "Doctor Price and his nurse are in there with her now.
I hope she'll be able to tell us what happened."

"You say she was dressed for bed?" the sergeant asked delicately.

"It looks as though she had gone to her room and gotten ready for bed and then came back here for something... perhaps a book to read, or a magazine," Shayne explained. "Or maybe she saw someone coming in my door and suddenly remembered she had left it unlocked, and hurried down here to put him out."

"You think she was attacked in
here or in the bedroom?"
"We'll have to get that from the
doctor. I didn't waste any time
looking around the bedroom after
I found her like that. It's my impression, though, that there'd be
blood on the floor if she was attacked in here."

"Might as well go over the whole
place for fingerprints, Richardson,"
the sergeant said to the younger
member of the trio. "What'll be
legitimate besides yours, Mike?"
"Lucy's... she cooked dinner in
this place."

here, as I told you. And Tim Rourke's. No one else has been here the last few days except the maid who cleaned thoroughly yesterday."

The sergeant nodded thoughtfully.
"Sure you're not leaving anything out, Mike? Sure you didn't know she'd be waiting for you like that when you got here?"

"Slugged?" Shayne's tone was outraged. "You think I knew she was lying in there slugged and didn't call the doctor for half an hour?"

"Don't get sore, Mike. I'm figuring all the angles. Seems funny your horsing around in here with fourke when maybe calling the doc earlier would have..."

Shayne got to his feet slowly, his big hands flexed. "Go on. Say it out loud, you liver-headed rat."
"What the sarge means," said Richardson, "is that you must've known she wasn't in good shape or you'd have been in there a lot faster."

Shayne whirled on the finger-print man, but Harvey's voice brought him back to a sense of proportion. "Don't be like a kid, Shayne. You've ribbed enough other guys in your time to take a little of it yourself."

"One more crack about my secretary and I'll tear you limb from limb," Shayne growled.

"You got to admit that lump on your jaw isn't more than a few hours old," Sergeant Harvey said. "You're not leveling with us, Mike."

Shayne stood very still and his hands slowly unclenched. "Yeh,"
he muttered. "I know the whole thing sounds screwy. But I gave you the story straight." He sank back and lit a cigarette.

Since finding Lucy on the bed slugged, he had wholly forgot his own disfigurement. Now he realized how things must look to the police.

"I got tight over on the Beach," Shayne resumed, "and rammed a concrete culvert on Delaware Road about midnight and got this.
You can check with a Beach cop named Rawson. He found me passed out under the wheel, and my car's in the hotel garage banged up right now."

"What're you working on now?"
Harvey asked.

"I'm not. I haven't decided whether to settle down in Miami again or not. I'm sort of on vacation."

"For a guy who's on vacation," said the homicide man who stood beside the sergeant, "you've been sticking your nose into plenty of stuff the last few months. There was that deal Rourke was mixed in and then the two stiffs in the Bay, and then just last week the Deland kidnap mess. And I heard down at headquarters that Painter was pulling you in tonight on the jewel theft at the Sunlux."

"He'd like to tie me in on that,"
Shayne snorted.

"There'll be a nice reward for the man who gets his hands on those rubies," Harvey commented placidly.

Shayne nodded. "I'm not saying I wouldn't turn a deal if they dropped in my lap. He's aging to his feet as the bedroom door opened and Dr. Price came out.

Mary Lou Reif Crowned Queen 'It's A Date' Show Held Here Thursday

Mary Lou Reif, brunette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Reif, who reside on the Waterloo Road, was crowned the queen of "It's a Date," a show sponsored by Company M in the WHS auditorium Thursday night.

1st Lt. Harold Finley, commander of Company M crowned Miss Reif during the wedding scene of the show. Sue Ferrin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herf Ferrin, placed second and Pat Eckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sox Eckle, got third.

The queen got a total of 11,900 votes—at the rate of a penny a vote. Voting boxes were placed in downtown business establishment. Miss Ferrin had about 6,000 votes and Miss Eckle had more than 5,000 votes.

Miss Reif won several prizes, which included a place setting of sterling silver, a silver spoon, three pounds of candy, a scrapbook, a large bouquet of snapdragons, a spray of roses, bath powder, bath salts, perfume, dinner for two at two different eating establishments, free shampoo and hair set, a rhinestone and silver necklace, four pairs of silk hose and a sash.

Sue Ferrin received a rhinestone bracelet, and Patty Eckle got a necklace and earring set.

All the prizes were donated by Washington C. H. merchants. Proceeds of the queen contest and the shows, held both Wednesday and Thursday nights, go to Company M, 166th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, for their day room and recreation fund.

Farm Group Opposed To Social Security

The masculine contingent of the Marion Farm Council today stood opposed to the extension of social security coverage to farmers and farm laborers "under the present setup."

A vote was taken on the question at the conclusion of a discussion on the subject of "Building Our Own Future."

Preston Dray was the discussion leader for the men's meeting which was held separately.

Women Make Plans

While the men were talking about social security and other farm problems, the women were setting up a program of various projects under the supervision of Mrs. Norma Campbell, the county's home demonstration agent.

The first meeting was set for March 7. It is to be an all day event and the project is to be metal trays.

A 4-H club for a group of girls also was formed under the direction of Mrs. Campbell. The advisor is to be selected later.

The meeting was held in the Marion School. Fifteen farm families were represented.

Refreshments of pie, ice cream and coffee were served by a committee made up of Mrs. Dudley Briggs, Mrs. Roscoe Duff and Mrs. Omar Rapp.

The next meeting, scheduled for March 14, is to be a potluck supper.

Weather Reduces Number of Arrests

Disagreeable weather the past few nights apparently has been chiefly responsible for a reduced number of arrests in Washington C. H.

Only one or two plain drunks have been picked up during the rain and snow during the past couple of days.

Usually one or more traffic violators and sometimes two or three plain drunks are gathered in by the police every 24 hours.

Still Have 28,600 Feet of Pipe To Lay

Continued rains have greatly handicapped the work of laying the 26 inch gas pipeline in Warren County. There is still 28,600 feet of line to lay before the loop in Ohio will be completed.

Had work not been halted by continued rains, the loop would have been completed several weeks ago.

Work on the last 33 miles of the 26 inch line was resumed early in the winter, with indications that a few weeks would see the job completed.

As soon as the job is finished in Warren County, work will be started elsewhere by the construction company.

Meanwhile, an office is still maintained by the Texas Eastern at the Washington Hotel, with Chief Inspector Jack Middaugh in charge.
